JULY

107.7

1977

The past few months have been important ones for KRAB. The activities of this Spring will have a lasting effect on the station.

In March, we received word that the Corporation for Public Broadcasting removed KRAB's qualification for support as a "full service public radio station". This means that we will receive no further money from CPB until 1979. In addition, the removal of our qualification forced National Public Radio to terminate our membership.

Under the current CPB guidelines, KRAB's disqualification was the result of our inability to raise sufficient local funds, and the irregular pattern of staff salary payments over the past few years.

Of more than two hundred public radio stations in the United States, fewer than ten do not depend upon educational institutions, government agencies, or co-owned television stations for support. KRAB is one of that small minority. We believe the standards for CPB support for public radio, which discriminate against a station like KRAB on the grounds unrelated to its ability to serve a community, is not consistent with the mandate of an agency which is, after all, in the business of distributing public funds.

On Wednesday, July 13, the Board of Directors of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting will meet in Seattle, in the studios of KCTS-TV. The meeting will be broadcast live on Channel 9 beginning at 3:00pm, and northwest residents will be encouraged to make their opinions about public broadcasting known through a telephone call-in format, or in-person in the studio.

As a result of the move KRAB is going to have a moving party. The party will be on the air and live from the station. The dates are July 8th-11th. During this weekend KRAB will have its rummage sale and a Latin Jazz Festival. The rummage sale is the 9th and 10th during the day and the Latin Jazz Festival is the night of the 11th. Listen for more details. Also, during this weekend, KRAB will try to raise the necessary funds for moving. You can participate by giving us a call that weekend or by coming down to the station and joining in on the fun.

NEWSnews

The built in bias of news reporting--the notion that reporters can never be truly objective in covering a story--has been subject to considerable debate lately. One aspect of the debate concerns the international press, and is currently manifest in President Carter's human rights campaign against the Communist countries. Eastern and Western countries have been expelling and pressuring foreign correspondents all year long, and this situation impacts heavily on KRAB's International News.

As with most East-West issues, the issue of press freedom has an important third world component, which is especially important to us since KRAB is trying to present more detailed and extensive coverage of the Third World than is available elsewhere in the Puget Sound Area.

The Washington Post stated the issue this way in a September 30, 1976 editorial: "The Russians and the other Communist states, of course, have long treated news as a state commodity--that is, propaganda. What is unfortunate is the degree to which large parts of the Third World are moving toward the Russian position."

This editorial followed a Soviet proposal that the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) adopt this clause in its 1976 declaration: "States are responsible for the activities in the international sphere of all mass media under their jurisdiction."

The attraction of the Third World to what the Post calls "the Russian position" is not simply the perceived proclivity of national leaders towards totalitarianism. German Carnero Roque, a Peruvian journalist, in the August 1976 Le Monde Diplomatique adds the important additional factor:

"The Third World suffers, in the specific domain of information, and more generally in the whole structure of communications, from an acute dependence, the same kind of dependence to which it submits in all its political and economic plans.

"This dependence can be seen especially in the control exercised by the huge transnational press agencies in the circulation of information. These agencies--primarily the U.S. agencies U.P.I. and A.P., and to a lesser extent, the British Reuter agency and the Agence France-Presse--operate unfettered in most of the developing countries, and impose on them a particular interpretation of reality conforming to the interests of imperialism."

Carnero supports the creation of a press agency pool for non-aligned nations, an idea originally conceived of at the non-aligned countries' conference in Sri Lanka in 1975.

He writes: "This pool can provide a valuable information exchange for the peoples of the Third World."

Such a notion has enormous pitfalls, though, and on this point Carnero approaches the position taken by the Washington Post. He writes: "If the common press pool furnishes only official, bureaucratic information, if it does not provide another dimension to counterbalance the traditional vision transmitted by the transnational Western agencies, we will have progressed very little, or not at all."

Whether or not the Third World will ever be able to unite around a common press policy, of course, is a distinct issue, and one which will in the long run both reflect and help evaluate progress on the broader issue of Third World political unity.

As Enayetullah Khan, editor of the Bangladesh Times, put it in a letter to the editor of the Christian Science Monitor, printed June 16, 1977: "News-gathering in the Third World does not produce surplus value as in the case of a commodity in the industrialized world. The Third World media are principally a political institution where the return on politics is more important than the return on capital investment."

10:30 KRABJAZZ
John Rogers with jazz and inscrutability.

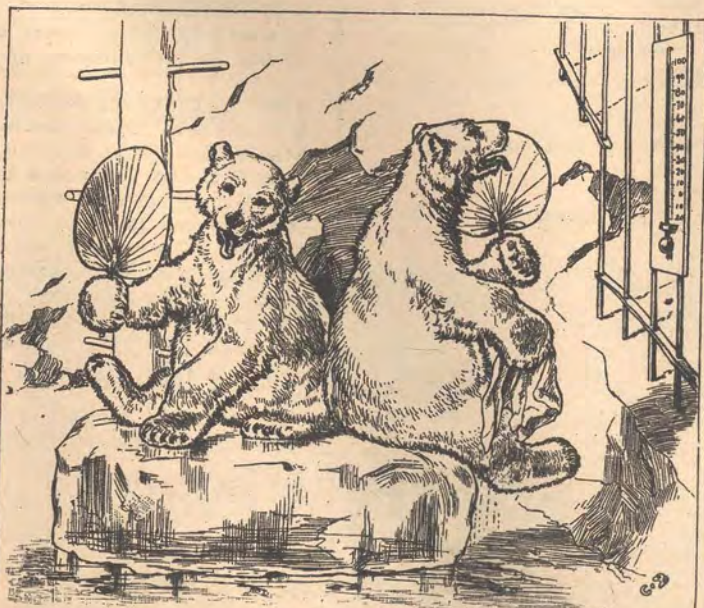

2:00 PM REQUEST A REQUEST
for us. We want you to, really. Just call 325-5110. We are at your command; we'll do anything (or try to) to air your most bizarre request -- or, if you don't go in for such things, we'll play your favorite music, backwards.

4:00 "...GOOD THOUGH!"
This week's show is devoted to New York composer-pianist Carla Bley, who has emerged in the last while as one of the best composers working out of the jazz idiom and, arguably, the most important woman in the field today. Her vision is wide; from charming, quirky piano pieces to large-scale compositions for voices and orchestra to an ill-fated rock band with Jack Bruce and ex-Rolling Stone Mick Taylor. Adam Woog spins the discs, plays a rare tape or two, and tells the real story behind the naming of his dog.

5:30 JAWBREAKER
Peggy Deleers reading The Chronicles of Narnia.

6:00 SCANDINAVIAN MUSIC
with Carla Wulfsberg. Sigbjørn Bernhoft Osa, versatile hardinge musician from Norway, joins with the Oslo Philharmonic Orchestra in a unique concert of folk music. Velkommen!

10:00 INVESTIGATING HUMAN RIGHTS IN SEATTLE
The Seattle Human Rights Department is responsible for monitoring the city's Affirmative Action plan, and enforcing anti-discrimination laws relating to employment and Open Housing. This discussion focusses on the practical problems of administering the program: how a case is made out, the investigative techniques used for uncovering evidence, the elements of proof required, and the legal principles that serve as a basis for these investigations. Participants are Manny Lee, Joel Salmi, and case investigators for the Seattle Human Rights Department.

11:00 ANDROSIA
Many of the KRAB night people play music in the dark. Phil Andrus reads in the dark. (In fact, some have suspected that Phil has been in the dark for a long while.) Listen.

2:00 AM KAY ARE AY BE COUNTRY
"Shoot low, Sugar, I think he's riding a Shetland." Aha, San Andreas on Country & Western music through the middle of the night. (It's his fault.)

7:30 THE SCOTTISH TRADITION: Gaelic Psalms from Lewis

The Reformation brought about, not only a reaction against over-ornamentation of religious buildings, but also a desire for simplicity in the church service and its music. On hearing Gaelic psalm singing for the first time, many who are outside the culture find it an extremely moving experience speaking in tongues, indeed: strange, beautiful, eerie, they are, at once, unlike what you'd ever imagine -- and also evocative of music and memories far away and long-forgotten.

8:00 READINGS FROM THE FOXFIRE BOOKS

Affairs of plain livin' in and around Rabun Gap County -- or, as the teacher & editor of the books (done mainly by High School students) would say, "I am convinced that we, as adults, must constantly cling to, affirm, and celebrate with our kids those things we love: sunsets, laughter, the taste of a good meal, the warmth of a hickory fire shared by real friends, the joy of discovery and accomplishment, empathy with the Aunt Aries' and their triumphs and sorrows, the constant surprises of life." Tonight, Old Time Burials, read by Pearl, Susan, Libby, Vincent, Phil, & Peggy. (Appropriate old timey music on the fiddle, banjo, guitar, & percussion by the So. Whidbey Island "Saratoga String Band," ages 10-30: namely, Nancye, Mike, Kim, Brian, and Fred and, from the National Geographic Society Album Music of the Ozarks.) Next, Peggy reads Maude Slopes' autobiographical sketch. Then, Susan Carlton and Jeremy Rothbaum speak for Aunt Nova Garland and Kenny Runion; and Peggy, Libby, and Ken read "Midwives and Granny Women." First of two parts. Produced by Peggy Deleers.

OUR NEW HOME?

In August KRAB will be moving to a new location. The problems of moving a radio station are gigantic, but can mostly be boiled down to one outstanding fact: money...MONEY!! Lots of it. We don't care how you send it...any denomination will do. Old money, crisp new bills, dirty abused coin, checks with ducks on them or money orders from the corner store..we don't care where you get it just as long as you send it to us. If you wish to remain anonymous send it by raccoon, baloon or buffoon and/or bring it in your birthday suit...just get it up here fast or this may be our new home.
